GLEICHEN AND DISTRICT LOCAL NEWS ITEMS

Mrs. R. H. Hogg left on Monday to spend a few days in Banff.

Prepare for winter by reading the Gleichen Trading Co., ad in this issue.

The Pender Cafe will serve lunch up to 1:30 a.m. on the night of the dance, Friday.

Mrs. Chas. Mitchell returned on Tuesday from an extended visit in the eastern cities.

The Jumbo Clock will never allow you to miss a train or be late for work. Listen to it at the Gleichen Trading Co.

It is stated that it cost $30,000 to get 24,000 signatures for a prohibition petition. So far as can be learned the cost in Gleichen was nil.

Rev. Andrew Boyd, B. A., will conduct Presbyterian services in the Methodist church next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

Someone asked if the Band was dead. No. It had a slight attack of indisposition, but has recovered and will soon be heard again.

Sugar took another leap in price, Wednesday morning, and the latest price quoted in wholesale lots is $8.90 per hundred. Going some.

Dr. W. H. McKenzie of Calgary spent last Monday in and about Gleichen and it is said left town convinced that the stock hereabouts was in a healthy condition.

Wheat has been on the move again this week. Several four horse loads having helped break the roads through the drying mud the two horse loads are now busy.

Several sportsmen have been luck in bringing down the wild goose the past few weeks. One party recently bagged 5 in two shots. Some people are born lucky.

Those owning autos in town had them out exercising them after enforced lay-up caused by the snow storm and muddy roads following the warm spell.

The water main back of the Bank of Commerce broke loose on Sunday and the water works department staff had a few busy hours to spend in repairing the leak. Monday night found the water turned on again and everything in shape.

It appears that there is considerable loss in connection with the marketing of hogs as a result of their being bruised through rough handling before they reach the packer. In some cases this loss amounts to $800 or $900 a car, and as it is impossible to tell which hogs have been bruised or pounded, it is obvious that the packer will have to protect himself by reducing the price on all hogs to cover the loss on about 30 per cent of the hogs which are ill treated. This is a very serious matter for the farmers of Alberta to consider.

Nearly all the advertiser handed in changes of copy for their ads this week and it will pay you well to study them all.

The town grader was put to work on our streets this week and the present appearance is much more pleasant than before.

Old Sol has been very much in evidence the past week and aided by the balmy chinook winds has completely retired "the beautiful".

Miss Bell Larkin left on Sunday for Hanna to attend her sister, Mrs. Crockett, who is ill with typhoid fever. Mrs. Crockett has many friends in Gleichen who very much regret to hear of her illness particularly as her son Frank has just recovered from the same fever and there has been other sickness in the family.

Tomorrow night a dance is to be given in the Opera house to which everyone is cordially invited and a good time assured. The proceeds will be devoted to purchasing uniforms for the Gleichen Hockey Club, and it may be interesting to know that the club will have a very strong team next winter. All lovers of this healthful sport will show their appreciation by their attendance. The admission will be only $1.00.

Wallace Hall and W. McIvor arrived in town Tuesday and spent a day in Gleichen. In conversation both gentlemen said that their crops were not up to the usual mark, in fact far below the average.

Mr. Hall made no definite statement but intimated he had brought in a load of grain and as he was only offered 99 cents was in hopes of an advance in the morning.

Mr. McIvor, however, stated that he had 158 acres in crop and his wheat was short in straw and only averaged 16 bushels to the acre, but that he was expecting to realize at least $1 per bushel. He also had a fine crop of potatoes.

It is reported that F. C. Ricken, of Cluny, was held up, robbed of his money and clothes and severely beaten up, at Lewiston, Montana, a couple of weeks ago. Word of his injuries was wired the Knights of Pythias at Gleichen, of which lodge he is a member, who immediately wired him financial assistance. Word has since been received by the Oddfellows, who are also now making inquiries in Lewiston as to how they may assist. Thus the advantage of a membership in these lodges is shown. Word has also been received by Mr. Ricken's father-in-law, M. F. Robson at Cluny, from the proprietor of the hotel in Lewiston, at which Mr. Ricken was a guest. It appears, however that he has not sufficiently recovered from his injuries to write his friends.

L. Laveridson brought into town last week, a sample of his potatoes which he says were taken from one hill. There were seventeen potatoes in the hill and they weighed 224 pounds on J. A. Ramsay's scales. Mr. Laveridson took them up to Calgary and left them on display with the C. P. R. He says that from one bushel of seed he dug 44 bushels of these potatoes which were grown under irrigation.

Oulletteville and Cluny Patriotic Society

This society was inaugurated on Friday, October, 16th at a very successful meeting held in Wheatfield schoolhouse. Mr. R. O. Sykes was appointed chairman and in a very able speech pointed out the purposes for which the meeting was called—to collect a fund for the benefit of "Tommy Atkins" at the front. Mr. E. Beauvillion de Montreuil addressed the meeting in French and was well received.

Songs were given by Messrs J. S. Hirst and R. O. Sykes. Mr. E. Beauvillion de Montreuil gave an exhibition of legerdemain and con juring.

A most attractive feature of the program was an auction sale of lunch boxes which were contributed by the following ladies: Miss Stott, Mrs. Coates, Miss Barnetson, Miss Maggie Boyden, Miss Gerty Boyden, Mrs. Brule, Miss Brule, Mrs. Brenview, Mrs. Walters, Miss Maud Brough, Miss Gertie Brough, Miss Gourdin, Miss Florence Walbeck, Miss Dotta Walbeck, Mrs. White, Mrs. Hirst, Mrs. Sykes, Mrs. Healy, Mrs. Wills, Miss Renaud, Miss Eva Renaud, Miss Gibeau, Miss A. Gibeau, the Misses Telford, Mrs. Marm, Miss Edna Corbiel, Miss Emma Bouchard, Miss Evonne Bouchard, Miss Ada Edwards, Miss Elsie Edwards, Miss L. Edwards.

The total amount collected for the funds of the society was $116 and the following committee were appointed to take charge of the Society: R. O. Sykes, chairman; W. H. Coates, secretary; William Brough, treasurer; Committee of Ladies: Mrs. Coates, president; Mrs. Sykes, Mrs. Walters Mrs. Brule and Mrs. Doten.

The residents deserve great credit for the large attendance, showing their great sympathy for our troops in their hardships at the front.

The meeting was closed by singing "God Save the King," and the "Marseillaise."

J. S. Hirst kindly gave the loan of his piano and played the accompaniments. A dance was held after the meeting, which was enjoyed by the younger members.

Another meeting of the Society is expected to be arranged for and held at Cluny in the near future.

The organizers of the Gleichen local branch regret that they have not yet been able to secure a suitable and central store for an office and assembling room, but hope to do so within a few days as one in a very central situation is being negotiated for. As soon as the room is secured a meeting will be called to completed the election of officers and committee so that the local branch can get down to business, when everyone will have an opportunity of aiding this most worthy and necessary object.

For Girls Who Would be Popular

Do not do those things which you know men dislike, such as dressing in a masculine fashion and behaving more like a well bred gentleman. Do not consider it too much trouble to talk and be agreeable to a man. He wants drawing out and hates talking to a girl who evidently considers it entirely his place to do the entertaining.

Do not be above taking an interest in the sports and pursuits of men & acquaintances. It is said that a man is never so happy as when talking of himself. Study the art of listening intelligently.

Do not commit the mistake of flirting. A man amuses himself with a flirt for a few weeks, but then he forgets her existence, whereas a girl who is frank and sincere is always sure of men friends.

Do not cultivate the habit of saying sharp, sarcastic things. Men hate sarcasm, partly because they don't know how to take it and because they are not always sharp enough to retaliate.

Fresh Supplies in Demand.—Wherever Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil has been introduced increased supplies have been ordered, showing that wherever it goes this excellent Oil impresses its power on the people. No matter in what latitude it may be found its potency is never impaired. It is put up in most portable shape in bottles and can be carried without fear of breakage.

His Foot in It
"Well," said the hostess, bidding her guest good night, "you have a long drive home, but it's a lovely evening."

"Yes, isn't it a fine night?" answered the guest affectionately.

"So you'll have a nice drive and won't wish you hadn't come to see me."

"On the contrary, I assure you, I always think that the drive home is the very best part of affairs like this."

The leopard maintains its existence alongside its far more powerful rivals the lion and tiger, by reason of its greater activity and power of climbing. Often it is driven from its well-earned prey by the brute force of these greater cats, but it has the wise habit of storing the remains of its meals in a tree, the weight of meat thus placed aloft in one effort being sometimes almost incredible.

"Here, what's all this row about?" asked the copper, breathlessly.

"Why, this woman is collecting money for the peace society, and when I refused to contribute she knocked me down," explained the meek-looking man.—Buffalo Express.

A Murder in 1870 Averted in 1914

An exceedingly sad story comes from the front. During the Franco-German war of 1870 the Germans, by their invasion of Alsace, spread untold miseries among the villagers, whose property they looted. A certain well-to-do farmer named Hauff became so much enraged by the plunder of his well-stocked farm that he shot dead two German soldiers. He was immediately taken outside his house and executed. In vain his wife begged for his life. She afterwards found their little boy crying on the dead body of his father.

"Mother," the child said, "when I grow up I shall avenge father and shoot Germans."

The widow, finding further abode in Alsace under German rule unbearable, emigrated to Belgium and settled near Visé, where she took another farm.

Her boy became a man, the father of a family, including two boys, and for forty-two years his mother shared with him and her grandsons happy family life at Visé. Then came the present war, and the German troops arrived in Visé.

The Belgian inhabitants had just before destroyed a bridge over the Meuse. For this they were severely punished by destruction of their houses. Farmer Hauff witnessed these outrages, and beside himself with distress, and remembering his promise over his father's body, shot one German invader dead. At once a number of soldiers seized him and dragged also from his house his two sons.

All three were placed against a wall and summarily executed.

It was thus the fate of the poor widow to see her husband, her son, and her two grandsons shot before her eyes.

The Hunting Spirit

Signs have already appeared—signs of the hunting season, which is near at hand. Signs of a good season, too. Over the hills and mountains, at about this time of year, hovers a sort of mist visible only to the sons of Nimrod. It is not inert, but strange, beckons. By those who have the eyes to see and the gift and grace of understanding it is called "the spirit of hunting."

If you would smile at this fancy, remember the story that is told of Whistler. A tourist stood beside the famous artist in a country of lakes and mountains. One was seeing the same sunset that the other was only looking at.

"I don't see anything in a sunset," complained the tourist.

"But don't you wish you could?" said Whistler.

The spirit of hunting, perhaps, will some day be embodied in marble—the masterpiece of a Borglum.

The zest and exhilaration of the hunt are not to be known vicariously, by proxy. They are learned only through experience, but it doesn't take very long. After the first hunting trip there is no cure for the malady that results. Some friends of yours for example, he disappeared into the woods with a Remington and a camping kit, and when he came back he was a different man. His beard was shocking. He never acted the same again. Like Barkis, however, he was a killing victim; and every year when the fever comes and he takes to the hard miles and crooked trails, there is no holding him back. The best thing you can do is to go along with your hunter-friend. You can easily get your doctor to advise it.

A hunter is as old as he feels, and judged by that standard he has the advantage over old Ponce de Leon, who searched long and vainly for the Fountain of Youth; and though the gift of the trails and tramps and campfires is physical health and strength one always comes back with a sense that somehow an even richer legacy has been bestowed.

"Belling the Cat"

"Who will bell the cat?" is a curious old proverb, famous in parables and in history. The mice, in the parable, held a consultation how to secure themselves from the cat, and they resolved to hang a bell about the cat's neck to give warning when she approached, but after they had resolved on doing it they were as far off as ever, for who would do it?

Both parable and proverb have immortalized themselves in history. When the Scottish nobles met at Stirling in a body they proposed to take Spence, the obnoxious favorite of James II., and hang him and so get rid of him.

"Ah," said Lord Grey, "that's very well said, but would bell the cat?" "That will," said the black Earl Angus. He undertook the task, accomplished it and was called "Archibald bell the Cat" until his dying day.—Glasgow Times.

Not Fit to be Trused

Recently a lady amateur song-writer sent to a popular actress-vocalist the words of a new song which she had written. The actress said she saw nothing attractive in the song and read the verses to her husband.

Great Scott! he exclaimed, when she had finished. "What's she talking about? What does she call it?" "She calls it 'I Wonder if He'll Miss Me!'" was the reply.

"Well," said the husband, "if he does he ought never to be trusted with a gun again!"

Tough Luck

He was a Yorkshireman, and, though he had risen in the world, was beginning to change into the sere and yellow leaf. To his neighbor at the dining table he began to complain about the state of his digestion.

"It's queer thing," he went on, "I've been working recently run across the crime. 'Running a blind tiger.' After a puzzled moment she placed it under the list, 'Cruelty to Animals.'"

Properly Classified

In the census office at Washington acts against the law are recorded under a few main heads, such as murder, burglary, etc. A lady who was working there recently ran across the crime, "Running a blind tiger." After a puzzled moment she placed it under the list, "Cruelty to Animals."

In many promissory notes the "e" is silent.

BATTLE FLEETS OF THE AIR

Methods by Which Aircraft Operate in War

The value of aircraft as a military asset is having its first real test in the European war. Never before have nations thoroughly equipped with vehicles of the air made war on each other.

Will the rival machines annihilate each other until not a left? Will the swift little French monoplanes drive the huge German dirigibles from the air? Of what actual benefit will the aerial forces be to the armies, where both sides are so equipped?

Even in scouting, where the air is clear of rival machines, the aeroplane has its limitations. To keep off of a hostile range the work must be done at a height of not less than 2,000 feet. At that height aviators have flown over a regiment of soldiers, camped in green cloth tents, without noticing them. As the flier ascends elevations on the earth's surface disappear and persons become mere specks. This aeroplane can be seen, at the least, the aviator can see with sufficient accuracy for shooting.

But the fast scouting machine has still another possibility—the destruction of dirigibles. This may or may not mean the wrecking of the aeroplane or the death of the pilot. Dirigibles, with the hatred of the dirigible company to all aviators, said recently that he would drive his machine through one of the big German dirigibles and save himself by jumping from the aeroplane with a life pack just before it tore into the side of the big balloon.

Joseph A. Steinmetz of Philadelphia, vice-president of the Aero Club of Pennsylvania, has invented an aircraft destroyer by means of which a fast scouting machine can blow up the slow moving, armored aeroplane or dirigible. The device consists of a wire that dangles several hundred feet below the aeroplane with a bomb and several hooks fastened to the lower end. The aviator simply steers his machine over the other machine, catches the wire of the enemy's craft and explodes the bomb by contact.

This device has never been tested in actual warfare, but it presents a way in which the smallest aeroplane might destroy the largest dirigible and still have an even chance of reaching the ground in safety. The wire is automatically freed from the aeroplane as soon as the bomb explodes and the aeroplane is left free.

In addition to the large number of scouting machines, each of the European powers is equipped with armored aeroplanes, which carry rapid fire guns are mounted. Other machines are built especially for bomb dropping.

It is highly probable that the damage possible from bomb dropping has been overestimated. The heaviest weight ever dropped from an aeroplane was 175 pounds, and the bomb has a tendency to bury itself deep in the ground and fire straight upward instead of spreading.

Bomb dropping is an effective way of destroying bridges and is capable of creating disorder in almost any body of troops, because in the bomb dropping aeroplane the bomb is aimed against which they cannot defend themselves and they imagine that one bomb will annihilate a regiment.

Several types of non-recall guns have been invented for aeroplanes and are being used by the nations of Europe. One of the best known is the Lewis gun, which is now being used by many of the armored machines in Europe. This gun is an air-cooled, non-recall machine gun, weighing 20 pounds and fires 700 shots a minute. J. Scott Sims has invented a heavier gun, weighing 170 pounds, shooting 700 rounds of .30 caliber bullets at a single charge. There is no smoke, no recoil, and very little noise.

Germany is counting on her big military Zeppelin dirigibles to make her the master of the air in the present war. Actual experiments have proved that 400 pounds of explosives can be dropped from a dirigible without impairing its safety and the recoil of a gun does not affect the equilibrium of a dirigible. The inflated bag takes up the recoil.

The Zeppelins are capable of travelling at a speed of sixty miles an hour for as long as forty hours. They fly silently and are most useful for night flying. They can descend to a height of 10,000 feet, dropping heavy loads of explosives. The modern Zeppelins are equipped with guns fore and aft, on both sides and on the top and bottom. They can fire in any direction and the Germans believe that they will be able to pick any aeroplane out of the air before it gets near enough to be dangerous.—New York Sun.

The Proper Place

A Chinese witness was on the stand. An interpreter was employed, but his understanding of English was not always clear.

"Now, you may tell the jury what change, if any, there has been in the room since the witness came in," said the prosecutor to the witness.

The interpreter, after conversing with the witness in Chinese, replied, "He says there never was any change, any place except in the cash drawer."

Costly Eyeteeth

"I guess paw must have passed a lot of time at the dentist's when he was in New York," said Johnny Green.

"Why do you think so," queried his ma.

"'Cause I heard him tell a man today that it cost him nearly $300 to get his eyeteeth cut," replied Johnny.

When Animals Sleep

Little people in the nature study class will be interested in knowing how the animals sleep. They are followed by different animals.

Elephants sleep standing up. When in a herd a certain number will always stand watch while the others sleep, for the big, powerful beasts are timid and cautious at night and will not go to sleep unguarded.

Horses have a special arrangement about their knees enabling them to sleep on their feet, though they also sleep lying down.

Bats sleep head downward, hanging by their hind claws.

Birds, with few exceptions, sleep with their heads turned tailward over the back and the beak thrust beneath the wing.

Storks, gulls and other long-legged birds sleep standing on one leg.

Ducks sleep on open water. To avoid drifting ashore, they keep paddling with one foot, thus making them move in a circle.

Foxes and wolves sleep curled up, their noses and the soles of their feet close together and blanketed by their bushy tail.

Lions, tigers and cat animals stretch themselves out flat upon the side. Their muscles twitch and throb, indicating that they are light and restless sleepers.

Owls, in addition to their eyelids, have a screen, that they draw sideways across their eyes to shut out the light for they sleep in the daytime.

Canada's Opportunity to Capture Trade

The trade and commerce department has issued a comprehensive analysis of the trade of Brazil and Argentina with a view to showing opportunities which Canada now has of capturing some trade of which Germany has been deprived as a result of the war.

Germany's total export trade to Argentina in 1912 amounted to nearly $62,000,000 as compared with about $116,000,000 for Great Britain and about $2,250,000 from Canada. Brazil bought from Germany in 1912 goods to the value of $10,000,000 as compared with $235,000,000 from Great Britain and $3,400,000 from Canada. The opening of Canada in securing markets in Argentina and Brazil to replace German goods are many. They include manufactured timber, canned goods, paper and wood pulp, manufactures of iron and steel, agricultural machinery, cement, furniture and preserved fish.

SICK DOG OR Proper Food Put Him Right

The food experience of a physician in his own case when worn and weak from sickness and when needing nourishment the worst way, is valuable.

"An attack of grip, so severe it came near making an end of me, left my stomach in such condition I could not retain any ordinary food. I knew of course that I must have food nourishment or I could never recover."

"I began to take four teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts and cream three times a day and in two weeks I was almost my only food. It tasted so delicious that I enjoyed it immensely and my stomach handled it perfectly from the first mouthful. It was so nourishing I was quickly built back to normal health and strength."

"Grape-Nuts is of great value as food to sustain life during serious attacks in which the stomach is so deranged it cannot digest and assimilate other foods."

"I am convinced that were Grape-Nuts more widely used by physicians, it would save many lives that are otherwise lost from lack of nourishment." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

Wireless Station in New Brunswick

This war is adding tremendously to the value of the wireless system of telegraphy. Wires and ocean cables can be cut, but the air is still free, at least to telegraphers, who are able now to build generators capable of carrying messages across the Atlantic, no small task since it takes 300 horsepower force to make sound travel that far.

The station of the Universal Radio Company is making Newcastle, N.B., a place to be talked about. Its seven towers are in full view from the railway station—in fact they are on a sixty acre lot of land adjoining the railway property. The highest tower, 500 feet, is in the centre, built of steel, and it is surrounded by six towers of wood, each 300 feet high. They make a striking appearance.

The power house is of concrete blocks and has two electric generators driven by oil engines of 250 horsepower each, built in Italy. The oil will be received through pipes from a tank car leading to a tank in the engine room. The operating building is also of concrete, and is for the use of forty operators.

The whole plant is complete and the finishing touches are being rushed night and day on a similar plant in Ireland. Another is built in San Francisco. Already messages have been sent by wireless between the stations at Newcastle and San Francisco, 3,250 miles.

The messages from Ireland can, under this system, be received at a rate of 150 words per minute. They will be sent over a leased wire from Newcastle to Fredericton, and from there will go over the C.P.R. wires to Montreal, which will be the chief distributing point, Newcastle, however, being the head office for Canada.

Minard's Liniment for sale everywhere.

A rich, but exceedingly mean man, residing in upper New York, who had an excellent wine cellar, but poor wine, found that in spite of its quality, someone of his servants was always stealing it. He called his butler, who was in a chronic state of disgust at his employer's stinginess, and said: "Thomas, this has got to stop! It is your business to attend to such matters. Now, what would you suggest as the most practical way to preserve the wine?"

"I don't know, sir," replied the butler, "unless you put something that's better worth drinking alongside of it."

A few days after the new farmer had purchased a horse from a thrifty Scot he returned in an agry mood.

"You told me this horse had won half a dozen matches against some of the best horses in the country. He can't trot a mile in six minutes to save himself. You lied to me!" he denounced.

"I didn't lie. It was in plowing matches he took six prizes," calmly replied Sandy.

An ambitious young man called upon a publisher and stated that he had decided to write a book.

"May I venture to inquire as to the nature of the book you propose to write?" asked the publisher, very politely.

"Oh," came in an offhand way from the aspirant to literary fame, "I think of doing something on the line of 'Les Miserables,' only livelier, you know."

It happened on a three-cent car line. The car was crowded. A man got on. He bought a quarter's worth of tickets (eight). The conductor took one and handed him the others. "Tickets," called the conductor as he came around for fares again. The unsophisticated one gave him another. Other calls, and finally the fellow handed over his last ticket, saying, "Py himmel, I pay no more tickets! I walk!" And he got off and walked.

Sue's grandmother had been scolding her. Sue felt indignant, but had been taught never to "answer back." However, she got even. "Aking her kitted in her arms she thus solicited:

"Kitty, I wish one of us was dead this minute. Not you, Kitty, nor me, Kitty, but one of us three in this room."

Danger Not Imminent

"Better go home, Jimmy, your mother is looking for you."

"Has she got the hairbrush with her?"

"No."

Thoughts For the Thoughtless

The error of a minute may be the source of a lifetime of trouble.

Impatience and human pride have destroyed or milled more souls than deliberate wickedness.

Selfishness puts away friends; idleness puts away success in life; carelessness and indulgence break down health.

To do our work conscientiously and bravely is not sufficient. We must do it with cheerfulness and vigor.

If we examined our own faults attentively we should have less time to detect and more inclination to pardon those of others.

It is impossible to live happily with out prudence, goodness and justice.

The lawyer was Scotch and his judge was English. The case in argument concerned certain water rights, and the lawyer had frequently to use the word "water," which he pronounced very broad.

"Mr. So-and-So," at last interrupted the judge, "do you spell 'water' with two 'u's' in your country?"

"Na, na, my lord," quickly retorted the lawyer, "but we spell 'manners' wi' two 'n's'!"—Tit-Bits.

Boy—Bin 'ere long, mister?

ANIMAL SPIRITS

Our Vital Functions as They Were Known in Galen's Time

"Few persons even stop to consider when they speak of 'a man of spirit' that they are unwittingly employing the language of the days of Galen," says the Journal of the American Medical Association. "Yet this is evidently the survival of the old doctrine of spirits. We may believe that Galen had a conception of the nerve trunks as conductors of something—he called it spirits—to and from the brain and spinal cord."

"The natural spirits were that undefined property which gave to blood the capacity of nourishing the tissues of the body. The vital spirits were acquired in the heart, and when at last the blood with its vital spirits went to the brain and experienced a sort of refinement for the last time the animal spirits were separated from it and carried to the body by the nerve trunks."

Such was the idea of the vital functions in the second century. Today, after 1,800 years, we know that there are no "spirits" in our blood or nerves, but we still speak of being in "high spirits" or "low spirits," of being full of "animal spirits," of a "spirited answer" or a "spirited horse."

They are guaranteed by a government analyst to be absolutely safe and never fail to cure constipation, colic, colds and simple fevers by regulating the stomach and bowels. Concerning them Mrs. S. Frontiers in the old World and the New

If they were not so deeply engrossed, just now, in the work of mutual butchery, we would invite the warring nations of the continent of Europe to contemplate the following very significant facts:

First, that here, on the continent of America, the two greatest nations of the world have a common frontier which extends, unbroken, for some four thousand miles.

Second, that throughout the whole vast reach of it there is not to be found, on either side, a single fortification, nor any offensive or defensive military work of any kind whatsoever.

Third, that leading up to, crossing it, or running parallel with this frontier, there does not exist a single so-called military railway—every line of railway communication having been built with the single eye to the development of the natural resources of the two countries, and the mutual exchange of the products of peaceful industry.

Fourth, that in spite of the fact that this far-flung frontier was the eventual outcome of a fierce and bloody war, and that these two powerful nations have always been engaged in keen commercial rivalry, they have been content to leave their frontiers in this totally undefended condition, and have lived as perfectly amicable neighbors for the past one hundred years.

Except for the slight customs house delay at the border, there is absolutely nothing that suggests to the traveler, be he British or American, that he has crossed the line which marks his transit from his own to a foreign country.

But let the American take ship to Europe and commence his travels of leisure and curiosity. Everywhere he finds the frontier lines emphasised by enormous forts, which are themselves interconnected by chains of lesser redoubts and intrenchments, the whole work being insistent and obtrusive, and presenting a forbidding aspect of antagonism and defiance. Nowhere at the frontiers will he see the signs or hear the notes of welcome—everywhere his eye will catch the glint of the bayonet, or his ear will note the call of the bugle and the tramp of armed men.

Furthermore, a study of the railway map of Europe reveals the fact that other considerations than those of industry and commerce have determined the direction and the grouping of the railroads of central and western Europe. It is a fact, well understood, even outside of the war colleges of Europe that military necessities have received the first consideration in the laying out of the railroad systems that have been built since the days of Bismarck and the formation of the German empire. When railroads radiate by the score to the frontier of a so-called friendly state, and when for all purposes of commerce they seem to end there, their meaning is plain. Taken together with the frowning forts which sit astride their most important junctions and meeting places, they constitute a permanent menace to the friendly state across the border, and they serve to smother, even at its very birth, any growth of that spirit of "peace on earth, good will toward men," of which the four thousand miles of undefended frontier on the Canadian border, and the one hundred years of unbroken peace between the United States and Great Britain, give such a noble and enduring expression.

That heavily fortified frontiers, backed up by a network of military railways, are a menace to a friendly neighboring state and provocative of responsive military work, and that they produce an atmosphere of international suspicion and dislike, cannot be disputed. The turning of Germany into an armed camp, with its frontier fortifications as the outworks, may have been a policy pacific and purely defensive in intent; but its effect on the neighboring states has been the reverse of pacific.

We happen to have before us that illuminating work by Gen. Kuropatkin, the commander-in-chief of the Russian army in Manchuria, entitled "The Russian Army and the Japanese War." After a brief survey of the several wars of Russia, and the gradual expansion of her empire, he writes: "Russia is in no need of any further increase of territory. This conclusion is in the highest degree important and satisfactory. At the same time, our military position does not now compare so favorably as formerly with that of our neighbors, principally owing to

Buy an Irrigated Farm from The CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY BECAUSE:

Irrigation makes the farmer independent of rainfall, and insures good crops, not occasionally, but every year.

Irrigation makes possible the successful culture of alfalfa, the king of fodders, which insures best returns in dairying and mixed farming.

Irrigation means intensive farming and close settlement, with all the advantages of a densely populated agricultural community.

Irrigation in the Canadian Pacific Railway Irrigation Block is no longer an experiment, the year 1914 having absolutely demonstrated its success wherever intelligently applied.

You can buy irrigated land from the Canadian Pacific Railway at prices ranging from $25 to $75 per acre, with twenty years to pay and the privilege of a loan of $2,000.00 for improvements (5% interest); no principal payment at end of first or second years and no "water" rental for first year. Assistance is also given in supplying stock in approved instances.

This is the most liberal offer of irrigated farm land on record. Get full particulars from:

our lack of railways; and our western frontiers are exposed to great danger through the perfect state of preparation of Germany and Austria." Later, in the same chapter, speaking of the growth of the Russian army keeping pace with the growth of population, he writes: "Our maximum in the Prussian war, 1766-62, was only 130,000 (troops). I am thankful to say that we have lived at peace with our western neighbor for 150 years." After pointing out that Germany has a network of military railways leading to the Russian border, as against five Russian railways, he concludes: "Thus the chief duty of the War Department in the first years of the present century is the defence of our frontiers. Of these, our Austrian and German borders being the most dangerous, should receive our particular attention."

This was written in 1909. Since that time Russia had planned and was constructing a system of defensive railroads to meet the emergency; and it was the determination of the German-Austrian alliance to strike before Russia could complete this great work, that formed, one of the strongest motives for the precipitation by the Dual Alliance in the present year, of the long intended and carefully prepared for conflict.

There is a growing conviction that the Teutonic attempt to establish that military dictatorship of Europe which was the ill-fated dream of Napoleon, results in failure, there will follow, if not the complete overthrow, at least the final subjugation and control of militarism. Of the many guarantees of this desirable result, we can think of none which would be more effective than a complete obliteration of these fortifications, modern in construction, but essentially medieval in conception, which menace and disgrace the frontier lines of the great European states.

Alberta Estray Law

A War Map and Two Papers for $2.

The CALL has made it a rule for some years not to club with other newspapers for several reasons, but as an exceptionally good proposition has been offered our readers we have decided to break the rule for 30 days only. During that time subscribers who pay for the CALL and the Family Herald and Weekly Star one year in advance may have the two papers for $2. This includes old subscribers as well as new and besides each subscriber will receive a WAR MAP FREE. Remember this offer is for only 30 days and you have the opportunity of getting two live papers and an up-to-date war map.

The Alberta Estray Law prescribes that the party who takes up an estray animal must immediately notify the brand reader nearest to his place to come out and examine the animal and take a copy of the brand, if any, on the animal. Then an advertisement must be inserted in the nearest local paper and also in the Alberta Gazette, and until the law is complied with the holder of an astray cannot collect any fee for his trouble or feed. Prompt action must be taken, the law being very strict in this matter. The brand readers are entitled to a fee of two dollars for each animal they examine and mileage to the amount of 10c per mile for the first 10 miles. The cost of the advertising and the reading of the brands is a charge against the estray animal and must be paid when the animal is claimed. The party holding the animal is responsible for all charges until it is sold or redeemed by the owner. No charges for feed are allowed between the 15th day of April and the 15th day of November. From November 15 to April 15 a fee of 15c per head per day is allowed for horses and cattle dating from the day on which the notice is mailed to the owner of the estray animal or to the Alberta Gazette, but not exceeding the sum of nine dollars. South of the 29th township only five cents a day is allowed for feed and the total cost is limited to three dollars.

Namaka Notes

Hearty congratulations to R. A. and Mrs. Coates on the birth of a son.

A capital dance was held at R. M. Johnson's hall on Friday night. Another dance is announced for October 30th. This will be a masquerade.

Plowing is in full swing in the district. The farmers say that the ground is in better shape for plowing than at any time during the summer. The moisture has gone well down into the ground and the prospects are good for next year.

The I.O.O.F. ball, held in their new hall on Monday, the 12th, was a great success, about 80 attending. The music was of the best and the floor being in excellent shape everyone present seemed to thoroughly enjoy the evening.

The Hockey Dance

The dance to be held in the Opera house tomorrow night, given by the Hockey Club, promises to be the event of the season in this line of amusement. A five piece orchestra will furnish the music and the floor of this well known hall will be in the best of shape. Nearly everyone is talking about the coming event and asking each other, "Will you be there," and the answer is invariably, "I would not miss it."

Aside from the pleasure to be had at the dance it is, in a way, a duty owed to the Hockey Club by those who are interested in this winter amusement, to give them the support they are asking, to aid in getting suitable uniforms, which will represent their home town and the pride taken in them by their fellow citizens. You will miss it if you miss it.

The Great War Map

The great War Map advertised in the last issue of the CALL is now being distributed to those entitled to a copy, and is proving far beyond expectations. The map is the most comprehensive obtainable. It clearly and distinctly shows every City, Town and Village, River and Mountain, in the entire war area.

With this map one has no trouble in following the progress of the war and the positions of the several armies engaged. Being 3 1/3 x 2 1/2 feet in size, it affords ample space to give all the information desired. It is done up in a very neat folder in convenient form. The map cannot be obtained except through the Family Herald and Weekly Star, but the CALL has made very satisfactory arrangements with that great paper, by which our readers may secure a copy free of charge. The price of the Family Herald and Weekly Star is one dollar a year, the price of the CALL is $1.50 a year and we now offer both papers for a full year each for only $2.00 and to each person taking advantage of this offer inside of 30 days the Family Herald will send free of charge a copy of their great War Map, which should be in every home in Canada. Remember there is a time limit to this offer and no time should be lost. Renewal subscriptions will be extended for a year from present expiration date. A copy of this great map may be seen at the CALL office.
